

Morrisons agrees with the grower what crops are going to be grown and supplied to Morrisons.
The seeds are planted and the carrots grow.
Once the crop is ready, it is harvested.
The carrots are transported to a Morrisons manufacturing site.
The carrots are quality checked on arrival to make sure they meet the specification.
The carrots are washed.
The carrots are polished.
The carrots are graded ~ this means they are separated into different grades, depending on their specification.
The carrots are packed into retail packs.
The packs of carrots are loaded on to a lorry and transported to a Morrisons distribution centre.
At the distribution centre the carrots are picked, ready to go to the different Morrisons stores.
The pallets of carrots are then loaded onto a Morrisons lorry with lots of other goods.
The lorry then takes the loads of carrots to Morrisons stores.
The carrots arrive at the Morrisons store and are unloaded.
The carrots are put on display in the Morrisons Market Street area of the store.
The customer selects a pack of carrots and pays for them at the checkout, ready to take home and eat!
